Candidates for Governor Provide Voters with Clear Contrasts

by James Giese

In the election for Governor Maryland voters can choose between two candidates having strongly differing views on the issues of most concern to them. Issues highlighted by both candidates are taxes, economic development, crime, education and the environment. Republican candidate Ellen R. Sauerbrey brings a strong conservative approach to dealing with these issues. Democratic candidate Parris N. Glendening, while not endorsing the administration of Governor William Donald Schaffer, brings a moderate, more liberal, more traditional approach to the issues.

Although their difference on these issues will make the choice clear to many voters some will be torn between candidates because they favor the stand of one candidate on some issues and the other, on the rest.

While Maryland is considered a traditionally democratic party state, Sauerbrey, a delegate in the Maryland legislature from Baltimore County, is expected to make a strong showing. Noting her upset victory over Congresswoman Helen Delich Bentley in the primary, Sauerbrey supporters predict another upset over Glendening. Glendening, who is Prince Georges County Executive, continues to lead in the polls, but generally by margins of less than 10%, making this the hottest gubernatorial contest in many years.

Taxes

Cutting the income tax by 24 percent over four years is the campaign pledge Sauerbrey made that has enabled her to come from far behind and defeat Bentley in the primary. It also has brought her into competition with Glendening. Sauerbrey contends that the Maryland income tax is 44% higher than the average for other states and impedes economic development.

Ten other states have already cut taxes this year she claims. "If we don't do it we'll see an erosion of our tax base," she said in a live debate aired on Maryland Public Television on October 19. Sauerbrey cites the tax cuts made by Republican Governor Christie Todd Whitelaw.

Voter Registrations Are Up By 232 in City Since 1990

by Elaine Skolnik

In less than two weeks Greenbelt residents will go to the polls to vote for those candidates they prefer to represent them in the U.S. Senate and Congress, the state and county. Voters will also vote "For" or "Against" various state and county questions and bond referenda.

The General Election will take place on Tuesday from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. at Greenbelt's four precincts: Precinct 3 - St. Hugh's School, Precinct 6 - Greenbelt Elementary School, Precinct 8 - Springhill Lake Elementary School and Precinct 13 - Eleanor Roosevelt High School.

As of September 30, county records show that 8,765 Greenbelters were registered - some 232 more than in the 1990 General Election (see chart). Currently, Democrats have added 433 to their rolls Republicans have lost 410 and the number of unaffiliated voters (Declines) has increased by 190. Declines gained strength in all city precincts.

Overall, 63% of Greenbelt's eligible voters are registered as Democrats, 21% as Republicans and 15% as Declines. The Democrats' advantage in precincts 3, 6, and 8 is 66, 63 and 68 percent respectively. Their share in precinct 13 is 59%.

Absentee Ballots

A request for an absentee ballot must be received by the Board of Supervisors of Elections no later than 9 p.m. on Tuesday, November 1. Eligible voters may write or call the Board of Elections to receive an application for an absentee ballot. Or a voter may send a letter stating name and address as it appears on the voting registration records the reason for requesting an absentee ballot and the address where the ballot should be sent. The voted ballot must be received in the Election Office no later than 8 p.m. on election day, Tuesday, November 8.

To obtain an emergency absentee ballot after Tuesday, November 1, qualified persons should call the Board of Elections to inquire whether or not they are eligible for an emergency absentee ballot.

For information, call Board of Elections at 952-3270 or write to the Board of Supervisors of Elections, 14701 Governor Oden Bowie Drive, Suite 101, Upper Marlboro, Md. 20772.

Potpourri

In the Fifth Congressional District where incumbent Congressman Steny H. Hoyer (D) is pitted against Donald Devine (R), there are 170 precincts - 26 in Anne Arundel County, 10 in Calvert, 28 in Charles, 19 in St. Mary's and 87 in Prince Georges.

Of the 25 precincts in the Fourth Councilmanic District, only four are in Greenbelt. In a tight race for this county council seat are former Bowie City Councilmember G. Frederick Robinson (D) and former Bowie Mayor Audrey E. Scott (R). Robinson has been endorsed by his two primary opponents - former Greenbelt Mayor Gil Weidenfeld and former President of the Prince Georges County Civic Association Robert Calahan. Weidenfeld lost to Robinson by 110 votes. Scott had no opposition in the primary.

Qualified voters in the Fourth Councilmanic District currently number 43484. About 55.4% are Democrats, 30.8% Republicans and 13.5% Declines.

In the governor's race, Prince Georges County Executive Parris Glendening (D) hopes to do as well in the county on November 8 as he did in the September 15 primary, where he captured 83.4% of the Democratic votes. Opponents Ellen R. Sauerbrey garnered 49.5% of the county's Republican vote.

Locally, interest is also centered on the County Executive race, where Republican Robert B. Ostrom is challenging Wayne Curry, a Democrat. In the county there are 309,706 registered voters - 70% Democrats, 18.7% Republicans and 11% Declines.

In the 23rd Legislative District, where there are 33 precincts, Democrats dominate by See REGISTRATION, page 7

Going, Going, Almost Gone

Bit by bit, the Federal Government is converting the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center (BARC) into a gigantic federal office complex. It began with NASA's taking a chunk for the Goddard Space Flight Center. Since then, NASA has grabbed off five other large pieces. To the north the Food and Drug Administration took another large tract. The Beltway and Parkway took other land away. Adjacent to Greenbelt, land has been lost to the METRO terminal yard and the Federal Courthouse.

Now the Department of Agriculture, which has fought the loss of its lands to others, is joining in the process to convert experimental farm land to offices. It proposes a 350,000 square foot office complex to be located on one of three sites near Greenbelt. The City Council is right to oppose use of any of these sites. Approval of this development would give the State Highway Administration all the justification it needs to extend Kenilworth Avenue to Konterra and the Intercounty Connector and make it, instead of US 1, the major north-south local highway between Laurel and the Beltway.

As we did once before on May 6, 1993, we again urge the city council to designate a green belt around the perimeter of the city, a major portion of which would be BARC land. It is important that the council make clear to other agencies our desire for an untouchable green space and seek their support. Nothing was done in response to our last request. If a green belt had been declared, perhaps one or more of the sites now proposed would not have been considered for the office complex.

We said then, "The time to designate our green belt is long past due. Let's do it now, before more of the green space is developed." Well, city council, better late than never.

Safer Exits

To the Editor:

I am writing to draw attention to serious traffic situations at two of the exits from Greenbelt:

1. Some time ago I experienced an accident at the Southway exit onto Greenbelt Road, when a fire engine came up behind me when I was at the front of one of the only two lanes there which were filled with cars, and forced me out into the intersection through a red light, to be hit by an oncoming car.

Last week the same potentially disastrous situation occurred, this time with an ambulance forcing me through a red light out into dangerous traffic; this time I was able to make a tight turn back into Greenbelt just barely in time to avoid another accident.

At the intersection there is no safe way to get out of the path of emergency vehicles. Other people must have had similar experiences. A third lane reserved for emergency vehicles should be opened up at the Southway-Greenbelt Road intersection.

2. I have witnessed several near-accidents at the Lakecrest exit onto Greenbelt Road as exiting and entering cars both try to judge gaps in the fast Greenbelt Road traffic and often block each other, and some cars trying to enter change their minds and try to turn back into the east-bound fast lane on Greenbelt Road. I believe there have already been serious accidents there. The situation can only get worse with the increasing traffic on Greenbelt Road.

This exit should not have been constructed without including a traffic light to stop Greenbelt Road traffic - a factor which should have been taken into consideration before it was authorized by the city in the first place. A traffic light is needed at the Lakecrest-Greenbelt Road intersection before more serious accidents happen.

Private Street

I understand that the new speed humps have been installed on Northway. I have not experienced this first-hand, because I have decided that I would at all times avoid Northway, even though I know that this is playing into the hands of those who demanded, and received, their own private street here in Greenbelt. The mentality—or lack thereof—of those who allowed it to happen, despite professional recommendations to the contrary, takes my breath away.

I take alternate routes to get from Ridge Road to Crescent, and I suspect that my neighbor will too, after her heart-chilling experience. She was wending her way carefully, slowly, and legally down Northway (as she always does, speed humps or no), and encountered two women laughing at her as she slowed standing on the side of the road, down to practically one nano-inch per hour to go over one of the speed humps. Since when do we in our "Great Greenbelt" go out of our way to make things difficult and unpleasant for others, and then laugh at them while they are attempting to deal with these difficulties?

People speed on every road in Greenbelt. They don't stop at stop signs either. Perhaps we should all emulate the 100 Most Important People in Greenbelt, the Northway residents, and insist that speed humps be installed on all our streets. That would take care of the speeding problem, eliminate elitism, and provide all of us with the opportunity to stand outside and make fun of our neighbors as they encounter the speed humps. The fun never stops.

War of the Worlds' Premiere Scheduled

by Sam White

If you were to attend a live radio show in 1939 you could show up early and see the studio personnel getting ready; hear the show going on in the other studio; see the actors come in and warm up; witness the live interactions of the sound effects people as they prepare the various effects; try to guess what the punching bag will be used for, and the box of gravel, and the metronome, and that strange metallic flower. If you arrive early you may see anything, because until the studio is "live", anything can happen.

That is the premise behind War of the Worlds which officially starts at 8 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, October 28 and 29; and at 7 p.m. on Sunday, October 30 at the Greenbelt Cultural Arts Center. The action, however, begins when the first member of the audience enters the studio. "In this particular show the earlier you arrive, the more you see," says Steve Blais, the director.

Commercials and big band music (from Big Band Bill's Big Band Hour) will be running in the background as the cast and crew prepare and warm up. There is an interview with Dr William McCarl, first Greenbelt dentist, taking place live in the other studio. Buddy Attick's brother, Roger, is in the audience carrying on as usual. The studio manager is falling apart, the actors are bickering, the trio can't get in harmony, the station manager is enraged, the announcer doesn't know what he's reading and the house manager doesn't care.

The fun starts as soon as you enter the lobby and doesn't stop until the last line. Its reminiscent of a murder mystery dinner because the actors talk to the audience.

I saw a rehearsal, and take it from me: to get the full effect of this show, arrive early. Besides, it may be the only way to ensure a seat.

Be Professional

Greenbelt Homes Inc., has just issued a fresh call to all its members to become involved in our corporation's workings by joining one of GHI's several committees. I think this is a great opportunity for those of us who may have the time and inclination to serve the community in this way. I only hope that those who choose to participate will take their place seriously, will prepare for their assignment, and will work in a professional manner in the interest of both GHI and its owner members.

In a recent request to a GHI committee of volunteers I felt I was not accorded this courtesy. A major decision involving my property was made sight unseen. Not one committee member had the courtesy or interest to come by my home to view the situation or to talk with me concerning my request. Neither had any committee member checked my neighbors' situation, and in fact they confused the issues involving all three properties all evening long, which were not really related. Only the chairperson was on time for the meeting. This is unprofessional and inexcusable.

At that committee session and at a subsequent GHI board meeting I also requested information regarding adoption of certain rules and regulations; I have yet to receive the information.

Greenbelters, please participate! — but do so openly and ethically.

Golden Age Club

by Dolores Capotosto

The next meeting of the Golden Age Club will be held on Wednesday, November 2. It will be the business meeting for the month, and we will be working on the nomination of officers for 1995. Please contact a member of the Nominating Committee if you have in mind someone who would make a good officer.

We regret that time constraints limited the length of the talk given by our speaker last week, Jackie Lindbeck, a nurse/educator from Doctor's Hospital. Perhaps she will come back and visit us again as many were impressed with her wealth of knowledge.

Our next trip, on November 15, will be to Odessa, Delaware. Odessa is a beautiful spot, maintained by the Winterthur Organization. There are two trips in December — on Dec. 1, we'll travel to the Harrisburg Craft Show; and there will be a Mystery trip on Dec. 8. Be sure to see Jim Maher about those trips, or call him at 513-5869.

We've been blessed with great weather this Fall; take advantage of it and come out to the meetings.

Candidates

(Continued from page one) come tax and high real estate settlement costs that require businesses to prepay a full year of real estate taxes. "I intend to make Maryland a much more friendly place to do business," she said.

Crime

When it comes to fighting crime, the candidates are closer together. Glendening claims to have a full program to deal with crime. He advocates a comprehensive approach. He supports the death penalty and putting violent offenders in prison. There needs to be a drug treatment program and law enforcers must go after drug distributors. He supports boot camps for nonviolent offenders and has begun one in Prince Georges County. He touts his endorsements by the Fraternal Order of Police and the Maryland Troops Association.

Sauerbrey calls protecting citizens the number one job of government. She has announced that her lieutenant governor running mate, Paul H. Rappaport, a former Howard County police chief with 37 years experience in law enforcement, will pull together all programs in the state into a very comprehensive program if she is elected.

Sauerbrey and Glendening differ on gun control. He wants a responsible gun policy and to get rid of military style assault weapons. Sauerbrey opposes gun control as disarming the innocent. "Criminals don't give up guns," she says. Instead she supports stronger laws for those who commit crimes of violence.

She also attacks Glendening's record in the county, noting that Prince Georges "is the most dangerous county in the state." Glendening's support by the police organizations has nothing to do with crime, she claims, but is due to Glendening's supporting collective bargaining and improved pensions for law enforcement officers.

Education

Both Glendening and Sauerbrey have been educators—Glendening as a University of Maryland public administration professor and Sauerbrey as a high school science teacher. Both place better education as a top goal for their administrations. However, how to accomplish the goal draws differences.

Glendening believes that more money needs to be spent on education by the state with budgets for other state programs cut to make money available. Sauerbrey believes that enough is being spent on education, but that changes need to be made in how the money is spent. She advocates giving parents vouchers worth $2,000 for each school age child to pay for tuition costs to attend the school of choice, including private and parochial schools. Glendening opposes giving out vouchers.

Sauerbrey notes that Glendening's son attends a parochial high school and states that she wants every other child in the state to have the same opportunity. Glendening told the television audience in the debate that his son could have attended and was accepted at Eleanor Roosevelt High School in Greenbelt, a school he described as "an excellent magnet school," but that his son chose to go to DeMatha High School instead.

Glendening opposes using state tax dollars to support religious schools, questions where the $200 million needed to pay for the program would come from and notes that since the voucher would pay only part of the educational costs, students from poor homes would still lack a choice.

Environment

Glendening has received the support of the three major environmental organizations that support candidates. He claims Sauerbrey to have one of the worst records on this issue. Calling the environment one of the five major areas he will focus on, he cites his record in Prince Georges County on environmental matters, ranging from recycling to mass transit.

Sauerbrey says that she supports 25 of the 26 recommendations of the Chesapeake Bay Foundation. She had opposed some regulations because they would impose mandates on local governments. One bill, would have placed such tough restrictions on oil shipping in the bay that it could have curtailed the delivery of oil to Baltimore. When compromise restrictions were made she supported the measure. She is concerned that environmental regulations can cost the state jobs and believes that the state economy comes before the environment.

The Future

In summation at the debate, both candidates looked to the future. "This is an election about the future of Maryland," Glendening told the audience. "I want to make sure that employment opportunities are there, that education opportunities are there for our children . . ."

"This election is about the direction of the future," Sauerbrey stated. "Do you want to continue the tax and spend policies of the past or go in a new direction for the future?"

Get-well wishes to Drummond Orr of Lakewood, who is in Washington Adventist Hospital, recovering from by-pass surgery. Mr. Orr was a teacher at Greenbelt Middle School for 30 years. Samson Lee, son of Kyung Ja Park, has been accepted by Berklee College of Music in Massachusetts. Lee, who is a guitarist, will study under a faculty of educators and professional musicians, fluent in contemporary music styles.

Brian, Claire and big brother Alexander Gisselbeck are proud to announce the birth of Danielle Lauren on Sept. 12, weighing 9 lb. 4 oz. at Holy Cross Hospital.

Emma and Luke Smith announce that they have a new sister, Summer Elizabeth, born on Aug. 31 to their parents, Lee and Karen Smith of Crescent Rd. Summer, who was named after her great-great-grandmother, weighed in at 6 lb. 11 oz. Proud grandparents are Larry and Jeanie Smith.

News Review reporter Virginia Beauchamp is a grandmother again. She is happy to announce the arrival of Leslie Marie, 6 lb. 11 oz., on October 25. Leslie joins 5-year-old sister Catherine Anne. Both are the daughters of John and Anne Beauchamp of Meadville, PA, where John is employed as an urban forester.

Dozens of Springhill Lake Elementary School children must have recognized the picture of their teacher Mildred Stephenson on the front page of the METRO section of the October 23 Washington Post. Retiring at last at the end of this school year, Stephenson, at the age of 79, is the oldest teacher in Prince Georges County. The article, which was the lead story in that section of the paper, describes her enthusiasm for her job, which she has held at Springhill Lake for 25 years. Over those years she has given her first-graders a rich beginning for their journey through the pleasures and excitement of the educational process.

Condolences to Edward Garner and family on the death of his wife Joanne.

New Deal Cafe Open House

by Bob Buzzanco and Don Comis

The New Deal Cafe is deeply embedded in the hearts of Greenbelters. That was made abundantly clear by the large turnout at the organizing meeting on Saturday, Oct. 22.

About 40 people sat on the carpeted floor of the potential site, the Mellon Bank space at 113 Centerway in Roosevelt Center, to express their enthusiasm for opening a co-op coffeehouse.

Offers of help and donations came pouring in: people from the University of Maryland's food collective offered coffee and discounts on food. Others offered musicians. Still others came bearing offers of support from businesses at Roosevelt Center.

"We see the open house on November 5, from 9 a.m. to midnight as a party, to celebrate the idea of opening a not-for-profit coffeehouse-bookstore co-op," said Alan Turnbull, member of New Deal Cafe Committee. "We're offering refreshments, coffee, live music, and a chance to bump into friends and neighbors. People can drop in anytime during the day or evening to get an idea of what the proposed coffeehouse might be like."

City councilman Tom White, another cafe advocate, said the open house is "a way to inform others about the concept of cooperatively forming a coffeehouse-cafe and to solicit support and ideas from potential members of the co-op."

"It's important to remember," White said "that the New Deal Cafe exists only as a concept. We have not signed a lease for the site yet. The Center's landlord, George Christacos, has made the space available for the day. This is exploratory."

1930's Costumes

Everyone is invited to come dressed in the 1930's style clothing if they wish. A copy of the new biography of Eleanor Roosevelt will be given to the person with the best costume.

Volunteers are welcome to help set up the cafe on Friday evening, November 4, from 7:30 to 9:30. Loans of tables, tablecloths, chairs, coffee-makers and espresso machines can also be brought to the site that evening or any time Saturday, beginning at 8 a.m.

Bakers who would like to provide a batch or two of muffins, cookies or other refreshments will be greatly appreciated. Anyone interested in donating books can leave them anytime on Marsha Barrett's porch, 8-G Plateau Place or bring them to the cafe site on November 4 and 5.

For more information, call Alan Turnbull at 982-6460.

Homeschooling

Multiple Choice, an Association of Home Education, will present programs on the benefits and challenges of homeschooling at these Prince Georges County libraries: Wednesday, November 2, Hyattsville Library, 6530 Adelphi Rd.; and Thursday, November 17, Bowie Library, 15210 Annapolis Rd. Both programs begin at 7 p.m. Parents will find out about the history of homeschooling, legal issues, resources and learning styles.

All library programs are free and open to the public. For information, call 301-699-3500. Sign language interpretation and other accommodations for individuals with disabilities upon request.

POLICE BLOTTER

Based on Information
Released by the Greenbelt
Police Department

Around 11 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 15, officers responded to a report of a suspicious occupied vehicle in the parking lot of TGI Friday's restaurant at 6460 Capitol Dr. After locating the vehicle they discovered a small quantity of suspected marijuana and rolling papers during the course of investigation. Three non-resident men all age 25 were arrested and charged with possession of paraphernalia. They were released pending trial.

GREENBELT AUTO & TRUCK REPAIR INC.

FEATURING JOE'S TIP OF THE WEEK!

IT WON'T BE LONG TILL FROST WILL COAT OUR WINDSHIELDS AND THE TEMPERATURE WILL DROP CLOSE TO FREEZING.

THIS WILL SET THE STAGE FOR THE WINTER AND THE REAL TEST OF JUST HOW GOOD OUR VEHICLE STARTS.

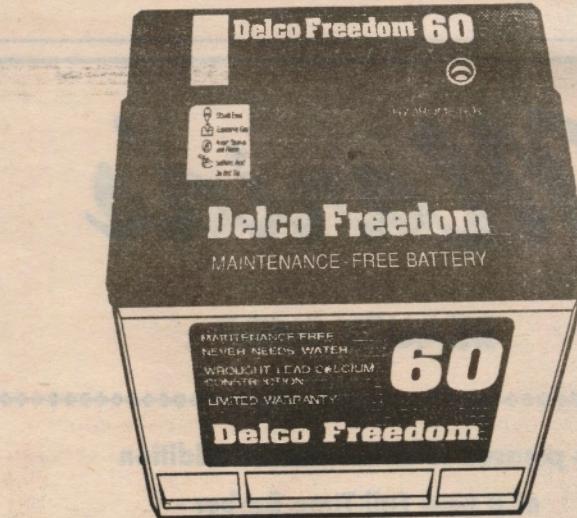

IF YOUR BATTERY IS 3 TO 4 YEARS OLD, THERE IS A GOOD CHANCE THAT IT WILL FAIL DURING THE COLDER DAYS.

THE COLD TEMPERATURE LOWERS THE ABILITY OF FULL CRANKING VOLTAGE TO THE STARTING MOTOR AND THUS LABORS THE START OF THE ENGINE.

WHEN BATTERIES ARE DETERMINED TO BE ROOT CAUSES OF STARTING CONDITIONS, YOU FIND ALL OTHER SIMPLE DRIVABILITY SYMPTOMS DISAPPEAR.

FOR EXAMPLE, WHEN YOUR VEHICLE DOES START AND 45% OF BATTERY STORAGE CAPACITY WAS USED JUST TO CRANK THE CAR OVER, THE ALTERNATOR HAS TO WORK EXTRA HARD TO PUT BACK INTO THE BATTERY WHAT IT TOOK TO JUST CRANK IT OVER. WITH MOST OF TODAY'S HIGH ENERGY IGNITION SYSTEMS IT ROBS NECESSARY VOLTAGE TO RUN, THUS CAUSING A DRIVABILITY CONDITION,

JUST BECAUSE OF A BATTERY THAT COULD NOT PULL ITS OWN WEIGHT.
TILL NEXT TIME - THINK PREVENTIVE MAINTENANCE !!
